The waves were perfect for surfing. Dave, however, just could not stay on his board. He 1) has tried more than ten times 2) stand up but never managed it. He felt 3) what he 4) would have never succeeded. He was about to give up when he looked at the sea one last time. The 5) swollen waves seemed to say, "Come on, Dave. One more try!" 6) Take a deep breath, he picked up his board and ran into the water. He waited for the right wave. Finally, it came. He jumped up onto the board just like he 7) has practiced. And this time, 8) stood upright, he battled the wave all the way back to shore. 9) Walk out of the water 10) joyful, he cheered, "Wow, I did it!"

On a Saturday in the fall of 2009, 22) which Brandon and I 23) were assessed the possibilities for a free and unscheduled day, we decided 24) go shopping for our dream farmhouse. We 25) has both been feeling 26) readily for 27) new something. We 28) were felt the same excitement that our children 29) has at nightfall, looking into the darkness 30) try to find a firefly 31) to catch it. We were hoping for 32) magical something, something we could wrap our arms 33) around it and take home with us. So we packed a lunch for the kids and 34) informing them we were going on an adventure. They gave us 35) questioned looks, inquisitively 36) pleaded, "but where are we going?" Once 37) strapping into their car seats they were only 38) interest in the destination. Of course, we did not have a destination and we refrained from 39) share that bit of information. After 40) packed a few books and toys to occupy kids, we went shopping for our dream farmhouse.

In the evenings, 11) clutched cups of tea and plates of supper, we would gather in the chintz armchairs in the sitting room. Always 12) kept a wary eye on the overweight, but ever-hungry dogs and our supper, we would settle down to talk well into the night. I learnt 13) a lot my family's history 14) while those long summer evenings. As daylight faded from the sky, the lamps in the room 15) would turn on, and the gas fire would 16) light. The four of us would sit 17) to talk, and I would ask so many questions 18) which even Daphne, with her sharp memory and 19) fundly of family stories, could not always answer 20) it. Then, some time after midnight, with the two dogs gently 21) snored in their favourite armchairs, we would yawningly creep up to our beds.

When I started to spend time in the region, I began hearing stories about sea otters. These days, the otters aren't so few and far between. In fact, when I 41) was confessed my lifelong dream of someday 42) to see a sea otter, people almost laughed at me! There are lots, I was told, along the outer coast. Finally, my moment came. I was on a small boat and 43) there were they, their dark heads 44) stick out above the white water 45) which the waves were crashing up against the rocky coastline. They weren't close, and the rough waves made 46) this hard to see, but in that moment I knew 47) that it was 48) have a dream 49) came true. It was a reminder 50) which things can change, 51) which species can recover, and 52) which I could let go of some of the concern for the otters 53) what 54) I've been holding inside since I was a girl.

Writers can feel <sup>55</sup>aching alone, but I am <sup>56</sup>tremendous fortunate to be part of <sup>57</sup>wonderful supportive scholarly, academic, and family groups. My deepest debts for this work <sup>58</sup>owed to those who have <sup>59</sup>been preceded me in <sup>60</sup>establishment food studies as an <sup>61</sup>accepting discipline. In countless ways, this work would not be possible without <sup>62</sup>them. I have recommended many of their works in the suggestions for further reading that <sup>63</sup>follows each entry and in the general suggestions <sup>64</sup>what conclude the volume. But I have also <sup>65</sup>benefited the personal support and encouragement of many individuals — too many <sup>66</sup>to name them here — at gatherings such as the conference of the Association for the Study of Food and Society and the Oxford Symposium of Food and Cookery. A more welcoming and nurturing group of scholars <sup>67</sup>cannot imagine.
